Executed by Squad

Johnny's Dream

Becomes a Fact

Wounded Veteran Is Adopted by His Home Town.

NEW YORK. — Johnny Chiefa, 30-year-old wounded veteran of World War II, lay on a bed in Bronx Veterans' hospital and full realized he may never walk again.

Just the same, Chiefa was happy. A dream he has had since he was a little orphan boy is about to come true.

He's going to have that home of his own.

It's all because the folks in his home town of Paterson, N. J., "adopted" him.

It was this way:

Chiefa before the war lived with an aunt in Paterson. He got overseas and suffered a bullet wound that left him paralyzed from the waist down.

They brought him back and put him in the Veterans' hospital. Chiefa thought his dream of having his own home was gone forever.

He took up watch repairing, because he figured he couldn't live on his pension alone.

But the word got around that Johnny was back — and that's when his friends went into action.

One of his friends got his picture printed in the Paterson newspaper. It seemed that everybody started chipping in for Johnny's future — especially for that home.

The others rolled in. Soon, Chiefa was able to buy a lot. Then he got enough to buy materials, short and expensive as they are.

Then Paterson's trade unions, stepped in. Carpenters, plumbers and brick masons went to work.

Up shot Chiefa's home.

"It's a wonderful feeling," Chiefa said. "Being an orphan isn't so bad after all."

Spinster Waits 24 Years

For Love, Kills Herself

SAN MARINO, CALIF. — Florence Farrington, 51, a spinster, ended her loneliness with death, leaving a note declaring that she had waited 24 years for love. Police Chief Glenn F. McClung reports.

Chief McClung said he discovered the body of Miss Farrington, a writer, in her home. He said she had shot herself with a .32 caliber revolver. Keeping watch beside the body was her dog Sandy, a Sealyham.

McClung said Miss Farrington left a note addressed to an undisclosed friend, with excerpts which read: "Twenty-four years of fruitless waiting and at the last you are still my best beau. . . There is only just Sandy, and my preference to go alone rather than endure the silence which meets me here. I hope your wedding tomorrow will bring you what you hope for."

Mother and Daughter

Suicides, Police Say

RANDOLPH TOWN, MD. — Police reported the second case of suicide in eight years at the Hellwig farmhouse when the bodies of a 73-year-old mother and her daughter were found — arms entwined — in a gas-filled kitchen.

A deputy medical examiner issued a suicide verdict after a son-in-law came home from work and found the bodies of Mrs. Lena Hellwig and her daughter, Miss May Hellwig, 40, seated at a table.

In December, 1938, police records disclosed, Mrs. Hellwig's husband, Philip, shot himself in the chest with a shotgun after an argument with his wife and daughter. Miss Hellwig escaped her father by tripping him as he ran from the house.

He fell on the porch, and fired at the daughter, but missed. Then he killed himself.

Him by Japs, Says Pu-Yi

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

OLD JUDGE: "Treating an alcoholic. Paul, takes patience just like in fishing. What people have got to learn is that the alcoholic is a sick person, and that it takes patience and skill to correct the underlying causes of the disease."

ROGER: "Where I come from, Judge, all they ever do with alcoholics is throw them in jail, and keep them there 'til they sober up."

OLD JUDGE: "It's too bad, but that's what they do in a lot of places. And it's just a waste of the taxpayers' money. Medical and social scientists have been studying alcoholism very thoroughly the past few years, and they know now that most problem drinkers are suffering from some deep-rooted mental or physical condition that makes them incapable of dealing with life without some sort of crutch to lean on."

PAUL: "It wasn't alcohol, I suppose it might be something worse, eh Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Exactly. But in more and more enlightened communities today they're providing special clinics for the study and treatment of alcoholics. So we're beginning to make some real scientific progress."

ROGER: "I'm glad to know about that. Judge, sounds to me like the only intelligent way to tackle this problem."

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui is a liquid medicine which many women say has brought relief from the complete array and severe strain of functional periodic distress. Here's how it may help:

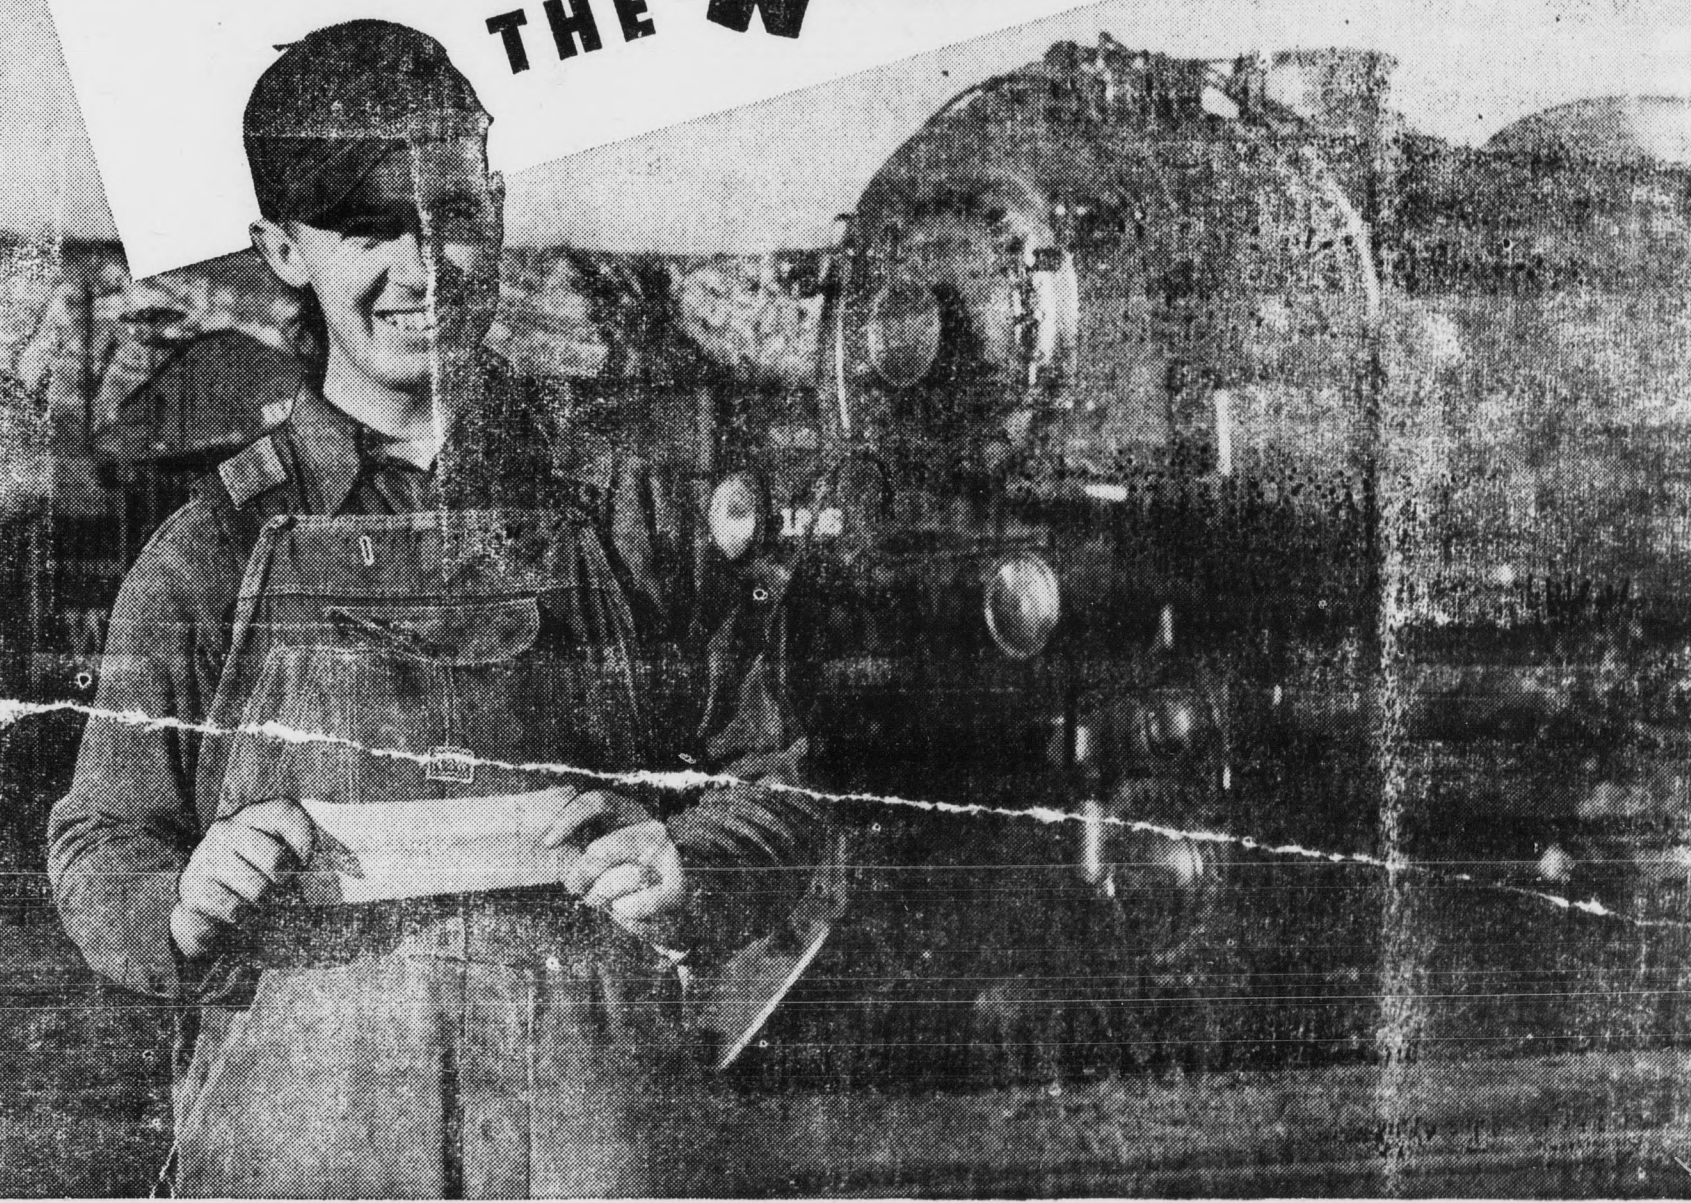

1. Taken like a tonic, it stimulates appetite, aids digestion, builds up the system, and restores the "time" to come.

2. Started 3 days before the onset of the pain, it relieves the pain due to purely functional periodic causes.

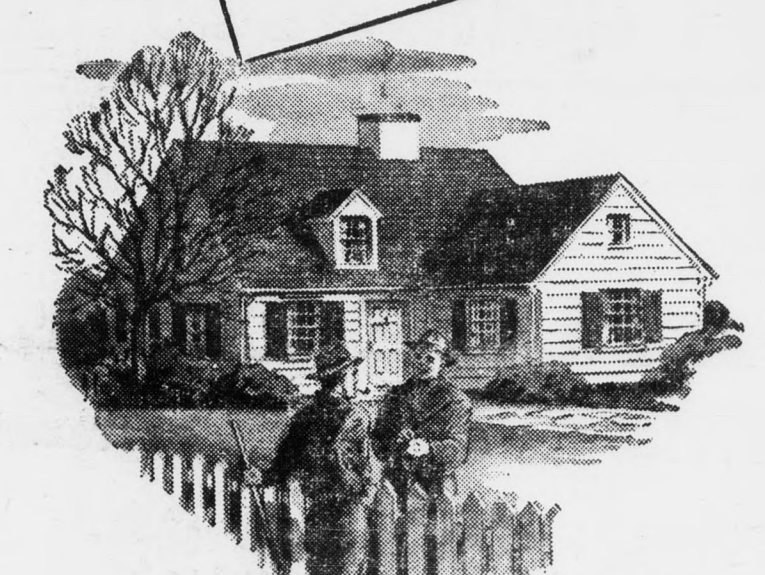

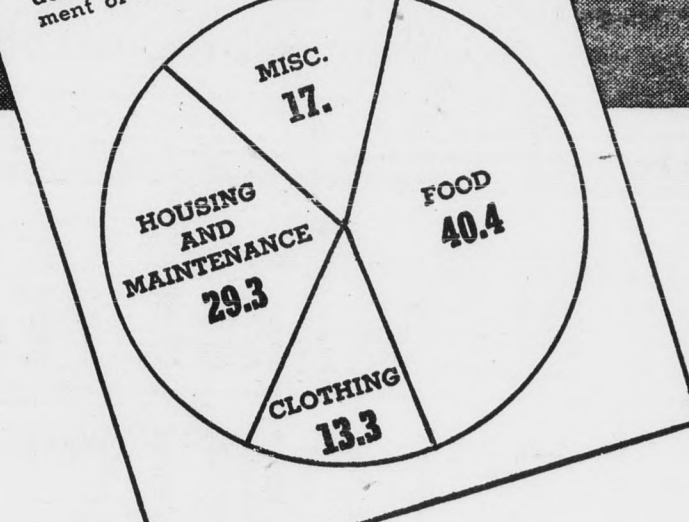

3. "Cardui, if it helps, you'll know it. If it doesn't, you'll know it."

WHEN IT'S PAY DAY ON THE N & W

How the average N. & W. employee dollar is spent. Source: U. S. Department of Labor.

Many N. & W. families are home-owners.

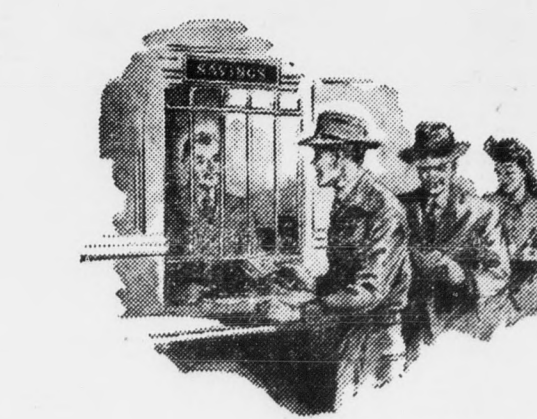

About 40 cents of every N. & W. payroll dollar is spent for food.

Pay Day means a lot to employees in any industry... and it means a lot to the communities in which industry is located.

The Norfolk and Western likes to feel that the payroll dollars of its employees are a substantial factor in the progress and business life of the communities along this railroad.

In 1946, the N. & W. paid its workers approximately $62,800,000 in wages and salaries (compared to about $32,500,000 in 1939). These payroll dollars rang cash registers along every main street on the railroad. Norfolk and Western employees spend their earnings in their home towns — for food, rent, clothing, automobiles, radios and other necessities and luxuries of life. A part of their payroll dollars go to local churches and charitable organizations. They invest in local real estate and buy insurance; save with local banks; and contribute to the upkeep of schools and other necessary local governmental functions.

Yes, N. & W. employees payroll dollars are community dollars. And the Norfolk and Western takes pride in the fact that N. & W. families are good, solid citizens of the communities in which they live.

N. & W. employees are regular depositors in local banks.

N. & W. employees' credit is usually good.

Retail merchants and dealers count upon the dependable buying power of N. & W. employees. This year, they will spend large sums from savings for durable goods.
